

On 22 August, the Dept of Fine Arts conducted a refreshingly different programme 'Painting Namma Madras' for children of class 5 of Sacred Heart Tamil-medium school. Students of the Fine Arts department made an audio-visual presentation on Madras, that is Chennai, to children of class 5, sharing the story of this historic city which we call home. This was followed by a painting session where the young children had an opportunity to unleash their creativity by adding colour to images of Madras. Games and a photo booth were part of the event.

A mutually beneficial, creative learning experience through which both the school and college students absorbed the essence of 'namma Madras', the event proved to be very enjoyable for the school children.
